By Mely Parker I Justin Sullivan / Getty Images News / Getty Images When downloading Apps for iPhone from Apple's App Store, the time required for downloading to be transferred depends on the speed of your connection and the size of the app. Small apps can almost instantly download, while larger ones require more time. Maximize your download speed to get the app installed on your iPhone and ready to use. The type of connection to New York City downloads much fastest than a weak 3G signal in the woods. A high speed Wi-Fi connection downloads even more quickly than 4G, allowing you to get your app over time as fast as possible. The size of the app is a factor in the speed on your iPhone. The apps that are graphic or heavy video (or who come with a lot of content) will take longer to download than small text-based applications. Plan to be on a quick connection and have some free time if, for example, you are downloading a map pack for a GPS app. For fastest file transfers, wait until you are on a fastest connection and then download the IOS apps. Unless you ever need an app immediately, you can save valuable time postponing the downloads larger until you have found a Wi-Fi hotspot or you have access to your high speed internet connection at home.
