Unit #5B - Clinical Laboratory Testing - Basic Hematology

- ◆ Common Hematology Laboratory Tests
 - Erythrocyte Sedimentation Rate (ESR)
 - Reticulocyte Count
 - Sickle Cell Testing
 - Coagulation Tests include:
 - ◆ Prothrombin Time (PT)
 - ◆ Partial Thromboplastin Time (PTT)
 - ◆ Fibrinogen
 - ◆ Factor Analysis

Different types of hematology tests. Most common hematology tests. Hematology list of tests. What is hematology testing.

Medium corpuscular hemoglobin concentration (MCC): A, which is the amount of hemoglobin with respect to the size of the cell concentration or hemoglobin for red blood cells. The MCC should be 33.4 to 35.5 grams per deciliter. The most common cause of low MCC is anemia. The types of white blood cells include the following: monocytes and eosinophilic basophilic neutrophils. If Low is low, you may be at risk of infection. All these cells help protect the body from infection. Lymphocytes normally represent 20-40% of circulating white blood cell blood cells. Lymphocytosis is a characteristic of infection, particularly in children. The slight eosinophilia can be commonly caused by atopic dermatitis and asthma. The Clauss fibrinogen can be measured regularly if requested on the request card and if the Decy is suspected; The claus fibrinogen should always be measured. The CBC measures the number and size of the platelets present. The normal range is 140,000 to 450,000 cells / mcl. Abdominal pain. The monocytosis can also develop during the recovery phase of an acute infection. Even the proteins à €
