R PROGRAMMING

26. Write a function to extract the first name from the string "Mr. Tom White".

```
substr("Mr. Tom White",start=5, stop=7)

27. How to request an input from the user through keyboard and monitor?

In R, there are a series of functions that can be used to request an input from the user, including `readline()`, `cat()`, and `scan()`. But, I find the `readline()` function to be the optimal function for this task.

28. How to read data from the keyboard?

To read the data from keyboard we use three different functions:

scan() readline()
print()

29. How many ways are there to read and write files?

There are three ways to read and write files respectively:

- Reading a data or matrix from a file
- Reading a single File One Line at a Time
- Writing a Table to a File

30. Explain how you can start the R commander GUI?

Typing the command, ("Rcmdr") into the R console starts the R commander GUI

31. In R how you can import Data?

You use R commander to import Data in R, and there are three ways through which you can enter data into it

You can enter data directly via Data > New Data Set

Import data from a plain text (ASCII) or other files (SPSS, Minitab, etc.)

Read a data set either by typing the name of the data set or selecting the data set in the dialog box

Pdf function in r.

To get out of this situation, you will need to execute the dev.off that all PDF connections are closed. Now we have seen the basic to build the Code R interactively. Also available for compatibility with previous versions is the "RGB" model, which uses RGB not calibrated and corresponds to the model used with that name in R before 2.13.0. Some spectators may render some plots in this color space faster than in SRGB, and plot files will be smaller. This section describes the implementation of the convention for grain devices established in the "internal manual". See postscript for coding details, as the internal code is shared between the drivers. The final patterns are cited in the arguments. Should small centuries be rendered by the Dingbats source? If the test is false, the body of the Else will be executed. Pattern for True. A character sequence that describes the color model: the values currently allowed are "SRGB", "gray" (or "grey") and "cmyk". Therefore, the line in the if block is performed only if the output is a  $\epsilon$  or  $\epsilon$  or null  $\epsilon$ . Most PDF viewers will use a white screen so that the visual effect is if the background was white. In very small line widths, the type of line can be formed to be the healthy. Except in windows it is possible to print directly from the PDF by something like (this is appropriate for a glass impression system): PDF ("LP -Landscape", paper = "4r") This forms onfile = True. All arguments, except the file file for values provided by PDF.Options (). Standards for "SRGB". When the color of the background is fully transparent (as is the initial standard value), the PDF produced does not paint the bottom. But this would make it more difficult to interactively test new changes. Standard for "standard". The initial background color to be used. #) Run the way above on your browser using the grain (s) DataCamp Workspace Rescue (s) in a PDF file. One of your employees asks if you can recreate the figures with lines instead of points. If it is not simply not doing anything if the test is false: a 100 {print ("one is greater than 100")} we can also chain several tests when there is more than two options. When use\_boxplot is defined as false, the plot\_dist will plotize a histogram for larger vectors. Filenames
