History The company was founded in 1982 by Bill Drake, author of The Cultivators Handbook of Natural Tobacco, Robert Marion, Chris Webster, and Eb Wicks, a plumbing contractor who took out a loan to finance the startup.[1] In January 2002, the company was acquired by Reynolds American and is now a wholly owned independent subsidiary of Reynolds American, which is in turn owned by British American Tobacco.[2] Japan Tobacco announced in September 2015 that it acquired the right to sell Natural American Spirit products in markets outside the United States.[3] Markets Display of Natural American Spirit in Japan in 2018 Natural American Spirit cigarettes have been sold in the United States, Canada, Netherlands, Belgium, Brazil, Luxembourg, United Kingdom, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Tunisia, Japan, Spain, Italy, France, Greece, Finland and Denmark. Yellow - Mellow Original Flavor. Fortunately for them, they got off the train right then, before I gave them a piece of my mind. First off, despite the imagery on the pack of Natural American Spirits, they are not made by American Indians or Alaskan Natives. The cigarettes are made by the Santa Fe Natural Tobacco Company which is a wholly owned independent subsidiary of American Reynolds, the second largest maker of cigarettes that also includes Camel and Kool brands. In the past American Spirit has said, they "were created based on our belief of the traditional American Indian usage of tobacco- in moderation and it's natural state. Our brand name was chosen as a symbol of respect for this tradition."1 Currently, the Santa Fe Natural Tobacco Company website says, they "have a special commitment to American Indians, whose traditions serve as the inspiration for our products."2 It is funny, but I don't ever remember cigarettes as being traditional. Traditional use is to sprinkle tobacco on the sacred fire as an offering for your prayers, it is to take a puff and release the smoke to carry your prayers, it is to give back to the earth as an offering, and to use for medicinal purposes. Even to place in a sacred pipe and seal an accord by each member taking a puff. It was not used in moderation, it is used sparingly as a sacred gift. As I rode home on the train today, I observed one person bumming a cigarette off of another person. As the man pulled the pack of cigarettes out of his pocket, I saw the familiar silhouette of an American Indian man wearing a head dress and a sacred pipe. And as he pulled out the cigarette, the eagle was affixed on the side of the cigarette. The other man grabbing the cigarette asked, "What brand is this?" The man with the pack of cigarettes answered, "They are Natural American Spirit Cigarettes. They are safe, because they are organic and no additives. They are made by Indians, so it is their traditional tobacco, completely safe, because you know they wouldn't smoke anything that is bad for them. They are really good, and like I said they are made by Indians, so they are safe". ^ "Santa Fe Natural Tobacco Company, Inc". In my former life, as a smoker, never once did I smoke a cigarette and say a prayer with it, or place it on the ground as an offering. I never thought anything sacred or traditional about the cigarette, the only thing I thought, was wow, I sure could use a smoke. Cigarettes are about addiction and making profit, nothing about tradition. Thanks for reporting this video! An extension you use may be preventing Wikiwand articles from loading properly. Written by Chris Cooper, California Rural Indian Health Board Akst, D, (2000, August 6). People also mistake the fact that Natural American Spirits are safe for them. The cigarettes are advertised as 100% organic and additive free. However, American Spirits have the highest amount of nicotine of any cigarette. And although the tobacco may be additive free, everything else about the cigarette has the additives. The company still has to post the warning on each pack of cigarettes, and in advertisements, they still have to say organic and additive free does not mean healthier. The Food and Drug Administration recently sent a warning letter to the company over the use of natural and additive free in the advertising of the cigarettes. This was part of an FTC ruling in 2000 and agreement, resulting from allegations that the advertisement of "additive-free" cigarettes made consumers feel that the product might be less addictive or safer than regular cigarettes.[9] California Attorney General Jerry Brown announced on March 1, 2010, that his office had secured an agreement with the Santa Fe Natural Tobacco Company to clearly disclose that its organic tobacco is "no safer or healthier" than other tobacco products.
