He completed his MBA studies at Amity Business College Noida after attending St. Xavier College Delhi. During this time, he received the Shri Mad Bhagwat Geeta from his spiritual guides, which deeply inspired him. Today, Dr. Vivek Bindra is renowned as a top motivational speaker and leadership consultant, with his YouTube channel boasting over 6.3 million subscribers and 300 million viewership worldwide. Dr. Vivek Bindra: From Business Struggle to Global Leadership Dr. Vivek Bindra is a renowned entrepreneur and business coach from the Indian business field. He initially thought of doing something new after realizing that not everyone succeeds in business. This curiosity led him down the path of his career, where he decided to train people who want to do business or grow their businesses. Initially, Dr. Bindra faced a significant challenge as no customers came forward for 1-2 years after the launch. He didn't know how to make customers aware of his business and spent many sleepless nights pondering over this issue. Luckily, a close friend recommended reading the Bhagavad Gita, which greatly impacted his life and altered his perspective. After gaining inspiration from the Bhagavad Gita, Dr. Bindra delved deeply into research on business growth, discovering numerous solutions and ideas that helped him develop innovative business strategies. He started presenting his thoughts to people, which garnered a positive response. Dr. Vivek Bindra is now known for designing business strategies that yield 100 percent results. He established Bada Business Pvt Ltd and began marketing himself by publishing books offline and online. However, it was his coaching services that brought him significant success. As an international motivational speaker, CEO, and founder of Bada Business Pvt Ltd, Dr. Bindra has become a prominent figure in leadership, sales, and business management. He has coached top industry professionals and collaborated with over 860 companies. His YouTube channel boasts an astonishing 20.8 million subscribers and over 1.6 billion views, cementing his position as the foremost subscribed entrepreneur development channel globally. Dr. Bindra has received numerous accolades, including an Honorary Ph.D., being a 9-time Guinness World Records holder, and winning the Times of India's Best CEO Coach in India award. He holds a substantial following across social media platforms with over 40 million people. During the COVID-19 pandemic, he provided training to more than 100,000 people, solidifying his position as a prominent business leader. The renowned Dr. Vivek Bindra has made a significant impact with his massive following of crore individuals and 132 million Monthly Active Users (MAU) on his platform. His influence extends far beyond digital platforms, having established the largest business community for Bharat entrepreneurs in over 1,500 cities, 100 offices across India, and partnerships with more than 40,000 individuals. In his headquarters alone, he employs a team of 600 professionals. Dr. Bindra's accomplishments have earned him recognition from prominent organizations like The Times of India, Maruti Suzuki, IGA, World HRD Congress, PWC, Indian Achievers Awards, Leadership Federation, and The Economic Times - Game Changer of India, among others. He is widely regarded as a respected figure in his field due to these accolades. As a sought-after guest on popular shows such as The Kapil Sharma Show in 2023, TRS Hindi, an episode of The Lallantop in 2023, and multiple panels on various digital platforms, Dr. Bindra continues to showcase his expertise and contributions to the industry. Dr Vivek Bindra recounts a pivotal moment from his childhood: "During my early years in Lucknow, when I was just three years old, my father passed away abruptly." This event set off a challenging journey for him, marked by multiple school switches and eventually settling in Delhi. There, he developed an interest in sports and adopted the concept of resilience, learning to bounce back from failures. As Bindra matured, around age 16 or 17, his proficiency in business studies became evident, leading him to capitalize on it by tutoring students and gradually transforming into an entrepreneur. He even engaged in selling dictionaries during college years to financially support himself, all while not fully understanding the concept of "entrepreneurship" but grasping its essence as he started tuition classes in his colony. Bindra innovatively conceptualized a fly-light business model for opening a centre, which required considerable CAPEX. He functioned solely as a demand-supply medium on a commission basis, distributing pamphlets and hiring a telephone operator to grow his venture. This innovative approach allowed him to earn not just enough money but a substantial amount. Bindra believes that one's past plays a significant role in shaping their future. A life-changing moment for him was when he spent four years as a monk: "I started living the life of a 'Bramhachari', studied the shastras, and helped poor children." The Bhagavad Gita provided him with a new outlook on life, showing him how it's possible to turn seemingly hopeless conclusions into boundless hope. He adopted the principle: "try don't cry." In India's corporate hierarchy, top-tier companies often receive support from consultants like KPMG, Mckenzie, Ernst & Young, etc., to boost growth. On the other hand, government initiatives for skill development are being implemented at the lower levels of the country. However, there was a significant gap as no business leaders were providing assistance to smaller businesses in growing their operations. It was realized that these entrepreneurs and small-scale enterprises required coaching in simple Hindi, which they couldn't afford due to lack of prior qualifications and poor quality content. Dr. Vivek Bindra, founder of Bada Business, aimed to bridge this gap by creating a free educational platform catering to tier-2 and tier-3 individuals, focusing on business-related subjects. Bada Business stands out from other training programs with its unique blend of engaging video content, practical case studies, and interactive tools. By simplifying complex concepts and presenting them in an easy-to-understand manner, it empowers aspiring entrepreneurs and professionals to succeed in the real world. The platform offers a diverse range of courses and caters to individuals at various stages of their entrepreneurial journey. Bada Business is dedicated to fostering a community of knowledge sharing and continuous learning, making it a one-of-a-kind platform for business education. Dr. Vivek Bindra emphasizes that a good entrepreneurial ecosystem is crucial for a country's economic growth, as entrepreneurs create new businesses, add value, and generate jobs. Bada Business aims to achieve this by providing resources and support to individual entrepreneurs and small businesses. For entrepreneurs and business owners, adapting to challenges is crucial for expansion. The organization has created a new education model, especially for those who can't afford traditional MBA programs. Their courses help young professionals and small business owners develop essential skills, such as entrepreneurship, and build or grow their businesses. During the pandemic, the India Revival Mission was launched — a series of online lessons and webinars to help MSMEs overcome the crisis caused by COVID-19. The online lessons reached almost 5 crore people through various channels. With fast-growing digitization, the edtech sector is experiencing rapid growth. However, ensuring that programs reach the vast potential customer base is challenging due to internet speed issues in rural areas and lack of awareness about online learning opportunities. To succeed both personally and professionally, individuals need to cultivate certain qualities and mindset, including determination, perseverance, positive attitude, goal setting and planning, continuous learning and adaptability, self-discipline and time management, resilience and emotional intelligence. Dr. Vivek Bindra emphasizes the importance of setting meaningful goals, seeking inspiration, practicing self-care, adopting a growth mindset, sharing one's journey, and surrounding oneself with positive influences to stay motivated and inspire others during tough times. Aspiring entrepreneurs should focus on key principles such as starting with passion, continuously learning, taking calculated risks, and adapting to challenges. Building a network of supportive individuals is also crucial. Embracing failure as a learning opportunity and staying persistent are essential for success. A tailored educational approach can help cater to diverse needs, offering customizable training paths, varied formats, and ongoing support. However, there is currently a lack of dedicated courses addressing specific topics such as initiating and expanding businesses, acquiring funding, and engaging with investors. A UCC-approved one-year diploma program in entrepreneurship has been introduced to assist individuals in enhancing their family businesses and launching start-ups. To succeed, young entrepreneurs should prioritize passion, continuous learning, networking, calculated risks, embracing failure, adaptability, building a strong team, customer focus, and self-care.
